

Terms and condition for the use of information on this site

- This site was produced by Breeze Across Us (BAU) to share some of our experience with a wider audience. This site expresses the opinions of its contributors and BAU will not accept any legal or moral claims against its content. If you detect errors, omissions or have suggestions please contact us through the e-mail address below.
- BAU supports a "free culture" and encourages the use of the information contained on this site for personal, educational and non-profit use. Please make proper reference and acknowledgments. If you have further questions or like more information, please contact us through the e-mail address below
- Pictures displayed on this site are low quality copies of materials contained in the "BAU Archive". The "BAU Archive" is a collection of photos, articles, video and other materials (mostly in digital formats) that document BAU's history. These materials were donated/collected for documentation and promotion purposes by individuals and organizations. BAU will try her best to seek permission from the original copyright owners, and persons depicted, in case of a request for use by a third party. Requests can be send to us through the e-mail address below.
